

SUBSTITUTE ABSTRACT

An electrical oven has a housing and a plurality of resistors in the housing electrically energizable to radiate heat. At least one of the resistors subdivides the housing into an upper baking chamber and a lower baking chamber. A support frame in the housing including a pair of bars flanking the one resistor so as to deflect radiant energy therefrom into the upper and lower chambers. This support frame forms seats holding the one resistor.